SEASON OF 1928
MY GARDEN

Those who love Nature can never be dull!

They may have temptations, but they will run no risk of being beguiled by ennui, idleness or a want of an occupation.

The love of Nature keeps us free from those mean and petty cares which interfere so much with calm and peace of mind. It turns every daily task into a blessing, and brightens life until it becomes almost like a living dream.

My Garden, with its silences, and beauty, and the pulses of fragrance that come and go on the airy undulations, affect me like sweet music.

Care always stops outside the gates and gazes at me wistfully and jealously through the bars.

Among my flowers Nature takes me into her own hands, and I breathe freely and joyously—as did the first man.

OUR 1926 STATE FAIR AWARDS

The Result of Quality!
Our Policy of SERVICE

Our SERVICE POLICY in merchandising does not mean just courteous salesmanship, prompt delivery, good measure, and the like.

It consists of a great deal more than those—service in ascertaining and fulfilling the needs and desires of the public in a satisfactory and economical manner, the searching out of the best markets of the world from which may be procured the products best suited to meet our customers' requirements; merchandise which must meet and conform to the very highest standards, and which must also represent the maximum of value that is possible for us to offer at any fair price.

In fine, such service, whatever be its nature, that you would expect to come from

"THE HOME OF THE WORLD'S FINEST GLADS!"

An old Persian proverb says, "The Priceless Ingredient of any product in the world is the Honor, and the Integrity of him who makes it!"

The safe delivery of our merchandise to a customer is never the conclusion of a transaction with us. We are interested in that customer for all time, for in the merchandise he receives is built all the Honor and the Integrity it is possible to include in any product or transaction!

By a close intimacy with the fundamentals of business ethics, by an intimate supervision of the many details involved in growing and marketing "THE WORLD'S FINEST GLADS," and by a never-ending effort and interest in making our bulbs satisfactory to our customers, we are ever striving to better serve those who purchase from us.

For us, the growing of Gladiolus is not alone a business. In it we find a rare pleasure which compensates for many of the disappointments and hardships which come in any commercial enterprise. It is doubtful if ever there was a human being with high instincts, who ever was tired by the endless variety, and the glorious colorings of the gladiolus.

We would not find this pleasure in business were we to give each buyer just his money's worth of what his order called for, and then call the transaction finished!

Our pleasure is largely found in your pleasure—in the enjoyment you find in your flowers which have come to you from us, and in the delivery of that intangible something called "Good Will" or "Service," and which is always included in the delivery of our orders, "No Charge."

We will continue in our efforts to Serve, for a life-time of willing Service has made us incomparable Friendships of incalculable value.

We trust that you will not hesitate to submit your Gladiolus Garden needs and problems to us, for we assure you it will be a pleasure to help.

We want to thank you for the business which you have intrusted to us in the past, and to hope that our SERVICE POLICY, into which has been built a life-time of Honor and Integrity, will merit your confidence for future business.

Visitors Are Always Welcome

The growing of Gladiolus in a commercial way may be “old stuff;” it might even become routine and so without interest to many growers, but to us, it never gets old. For us, the growing of flowers has never lost its romance and charm, and there is poetry in every bloom, interest in every operation from the preparing of our rich, productive soil to the final disposal of every bloom and bulb.

We sincerely urge that you come and see us, for there is always something of interest to be seen and learned at our Gardens, and we do not hesitate to give you information, to show you if we can, the many alluring things that you may have overlooked in your Flower Garden.

Every season we have some new and unusual varieties not listed in the catalogue nor for sale till the following year or two. These rare varieties will be of immense interest to real “Glad Fans” as they are not only different from anything we have ever seen but more beautiful in color, and of greater size and sturdiness, with unusual numbers of flowers opening at the time and unusual size to each floret, etc. It is most interesting to see what hybridizers in foreign lands have accomplished in improving the “Gladiolus—the king of all our garden flowers.” We have succeeded in securing the very finest productions to date from different parts of the world and cordially invite you to enjoy the beauty of the “Real Aristocrats” of the garden with us.

Our gardens are located 12 miles north of St. Paul, on paved road. Take Highway No. 1 to White Bear Lake. After passing the northwest end of the lake, instead of continuing on No. 1 through the city, you turn to the left, crossing the N. P. R. R. tracks, at the Standard Oil filling station onto Bald Eagle avenue. Continue north 1 mile. Our place is on the west side of the avenue, just before you come to the Soo Line R. R. crossing.

Coming from Minneapolis it will be less confusing to take Highway No. 63. Continue on this road until you reach the city of White Bear Lake. Turn north onto Bald Eagle avenue at the first stop and go sign, and continue north about three-quarters of a mile to our place.

Blooming time with us is usually from July 15 until frost. But more of the finest varieties will be at their best about August 1 to 15, according to season.

We will make you welcome, for we want you to know

The Home of the World’s Finest Glads.
The "QUALITY" of Our Bulbs

In the purchase of Gladiolus bulbs, the buyer must depend much upon the ability and knowledge, as well as the integrity of the grower, for many of the values of the bulbs are hidden from sight.

Perhaps first of all comes the selecting by the grower of the varieties he will produce and offer for sale. Ideas and tastes in the love of Gladiolus are various, and change, and it is with this thought that we are always seeking the newer and better varieties to fill the needs of our discriminating customers who will have "nothing but the best."

Every phase of the industry, including the choosing and preparation of the fields for planting, the cultivation and growing, the digging and curing, the handling, storing and shipping of the bulbs, all have a most important bearing on high quality.

Each of these operations receives our personal and intimate supervision to the end that no detail is overlooked which will make it possible to add more quality.

On page 1 of this book is an illustration of some of the prizes which have been awarded to us because of this "quality" in our bulbs, and we take a great pride in stating that not a bulb was planted or grown with the idea of exhibiting the bloom from it.

Many growers who exhibit their blooms, choose the bulbs with great care, count the days to the blooming time, check against the number of days to the date of the exhibit, and then plant with nothing but the exhibit in mind. They give those bulbs extra care and attention in fertilizing and watering, cultivating, and in other ways, many even protecting them from the wind and sun as they begin to bloom, and then show them as a standard growth from stock bulbs!

That is not our method for, with us, and our quality bulbs, it is not necessary. Our bulbs are all of high quality to begin with! Nor is any bulb petted or pampered in any way different from all the rest! All are treated exactly alike, but, all are grown and cared for with the knowledge, and by methods that time, study and experience have taught us will produce bulbs and blooms of unexcelled quality!

This knowledge and the care which all receive, together with the rich soil and ideal climatic conditions for bulb growing found in Minnesota, enable us to grow into our bulbs such elements and powers for germination and reproduction that we do not need use any artificial methods for growing "Prize Winning Blooms" from our QUALITY bulbs!

Our winnings at exhibitions have, in every case, been made with what we like to call our ordinary or standard blooms, blooms cut from our open fields, but grown from the only kind of bulbs we have—QUALITY BULBS!

Therefore we take an extra pride in stating that at the Gladiolus Exhibit of the Minnesota State Fair in 1926 we broke all previous records of winnings by far, with our ordinary field-grown blooms; and won against the keenest kind of competition.

With 24 entries there we were awarded 20 First, 2 Second and 2 Third prize awards.

Also we won the Sweepstakes or Grand prize award, which was given us on our showing of Golden Dream.

No exhibition in 1927. We were visited by a severe hail storm which destroyed all the blooms and buds at the time for gathering the flowers for the Fair. We simply had nothing left to show.

The most generous treatment may be expected, as we always desire to give our customers a pleasant surprise along with their orders.

We make these liberal discount offers to induce you to order early for during the winter months it costs us much less to fill the order ready for shipping than it does later during the "peak" or rush season. You also benefit by being able to get exactly the kinds you want before our stocks of many kinds are depleted or possibly entirely exhausted.

Garden Clubs, Park Boards, Large Estates, etc., interested in larger quantities of bulbs than here outlined will kindly advise us early as to their requirements and we will gladly submit special offers on any surplus stock we may have on hand.

Sizes of Bulbs

All bulbs shipped will be of the best size and age for finest blooms and the reproduction of new bulbs.

Different varieties and types vary in the size of the bulbs. Some varieties grow but a little over an inch for large sized bulbs while others grow much larger. Most of our varieties run in size from 1¼ inches to 1½ inches, except as noted. Extremely large bulbs are usually older ones which have passed the age for producing fine blooms, and therefore not so desirable as strong, plump, young bulbs.

LARGE, indicated by L., in connection with prices will run mostly 1¼ and 1½ inch in diameter. None termed Large Blooming Size will run smaller than a strong 1 inch.

MEDIUM, indicated by M., will include bulbs from ¾ to 1¼ inch in diameter and will average 1 inch. This size will bloom nicely the first season under normal conditions but a little later than the larger sizes.

SMALL, indicated by S., is less than ¾ of an inch and will average ½ inch in diameter. Many of them will bloom first season if planted early, but are not so recommended. This size will produce the most bulblets, and make a good blooming size bulb for the next year, if you can wait.

Cultural Directions

Printed cultural directions compiled by the American Gladiolus Society will be furnished with each order.

Read Carefully Before Ordering

Send all orders early to enjoy the discounts and to insure your getting all of the varieties you want. All orders are filled in rotation as received and as stocks are of unequal quantities many of them are soon exhausted.

Domestic remittance will be accepted by bank draft, personal check, postal or express money order. Please don’t send postage stamps; we have no sale for stamps.

The World's Finest for 1928

In the list which follows you will find only those varieties which may well be called "The World's Finest Glads!" None are old—every one is good.

We offer here many different varieties and types, many different kinds and prices coming from all parts of the world, so that every taste and changing desire of the Gladiolus lover, from that of the beginner to that of the discriminating connoisseur may be satisfied.

Perhaps you will note the absence of any classed as "Anderson Originations"—and wonder why?

It is our conviction that many growers "hybridize" or "breed," then offer for sale many kinds which are usually very much over-rated and over-stated in almost every way.

That, we do not do!

We search the market places of the world for the best to be had from only the outstanding and foremost hybridizers wherever they may be found!

Thus we are assured that our collection is second to none, for the judgment of all those originators is at stake and their products must always be tried and proven before dissemination!

Were we to offer our own originations, it would be just our judgment of quality and merit against the judgment of the buyers of the world, one man's judgment against that of the millions.

We are glad to acknowledge the superiority of the multitude which have joined in the approval of the kinds we offer here, for there was never a truer maxim in business than "Fear not to buy that which the generality of men join in approving!"

New and better originations are offered each season. We make an effort to see as many of them as we can, and choose only those which show outstanding merit and value for our growing and offering to our friends. As quickly as stocks can be grown large enough for disseminating, we offer these rare treats to you and we have no hesitancy in assuring you that there is nothing but pleasure and enjoyment to be found in any of the varieties you may select from us.

As they grow and bloom in your garden you will agree with our assertions that this is in truth,

"The Home of The WORLD’S FINEST GLADS!"

THE ORCHID
ORCHID, THE (Sprague)—It resembles no other flower in the show, either in color or form and is fittingly named “The Orchid,” for a single floret worn as a cattaleya would readily be mistaken for one a few feet distant. Its long, narrow, ruffled and lacinated petals open to a width of six to nine inches with a ground color of very pale lavender flecked toward the edges and ends with lavender-pink. The upper petal is usually incurved, partially concealing a touch of yellow in the throat crossed by two very narrow feathers of amaranth. Four to five florets are open at one time and are gracefully placed on the spike, not opposite but all facing the front. While most interesting variations in form and color of this remarkable flower have been brought out from time to time during the last fifty years, no such distinctly new type has ever before been shown.

Dahlias

While we specialize in the growing of the "Best Gladiolus" we have grown Dahlias for more than ten years as a "Hobby." Needless to say, our first collection has all been replaced with the newer and better varieties that are far superior in color, size, stems, etc., to the best of ten years ago. There is no comparison. Here the climate is not as suitable for the flowers as in the extreme east or west coast countries, but we have satisfied ourselves that if one loves a plant it can be made to grow and bloom most anywhere—and we have had most beautiful Dahlias in our own garden. Hundreds of visitors have been surprised and have frankly admitted that they have never seen or known that there existed such fine Dahlias. Many have placed their orders for tubers right then and there.

No doubt the Dahlia requires better treatment, especially in extremely dry and hot climates, than they need in the moist atmospheric conditions in the coast countries, but we are well satisfied that the tubers produced here are harder, and will do better without being acclimated than those grown under more favorable conditions for production of flowers.

We do not claim to have the largest and finest collection of Dahlias in the country, and our intention is not to try to see how many varieties we can grow, but rather how many of the "very best" we can secure. It is our ambition to add the newest and best each year as they are disseminated till our Dahlia collection is second to none—Quality considered.

We are giving a few hints on the growing of Dahlias that we hope will be of some help to the beginner, as we wish our customers the very best success with every bulb or tuber we send out. By following these simple instructions you will be well rewarded for your trouble "When Your Dahlias Bloom."

SOIL PREPARATION—

Prepare the soil in the fall or early spring by spading it at least fourteen inches deep (the deeper the better). Work in well rotted stable manure, if available, and mix well with the soil. An ordinary five-tine spading fork is most adaptable for this work. If your soil is a heavy clay or black gumbo that will pack or bake hard, and if no old manure is to be had, work in a liberal amount of old leaves or anything from the compost pile. Even sifted coal ashes or sand will help to keep the soil loose and friable. Fresh manure should never be used as any bulb or tuber will resent it. If you have good garden land that has been enriched in previous years no fertilizer is needed till buds begin to appear. If your soil is very poor and nothing will grow well, you can overcome this difficulty at only a small expense. Secure a good potato fertilizer of say 4-16-8 at any seed store. Scatter a liberal amount over the ground two weeks before planting and mix well with the soil.

PLANTING TIME—

Planting time varies a great deal according to locality. With us the best time is usually from May 10th to 20th. Later planting is perhaps better in localities where there is no danger of early frost, as the best flowers are produced late in the season after the summer heat is past. Dig the holes five or six inches deep, lay the tuber on the side with the eye or sprout up (never set tuber on end). Before covering, drive a stout stake well into the ground about six inches from the crown of the tuber. The stake should be at least four feet long above ground. If your garden is exposed to strong winds set the stake on the side of tuber from which the worst wind storms usually come, thus saving the plants from being torn or twisted to pieces by high winds. When stakes are set, cover the tuber and make firm the soil well around it to exclude air pockets. If soil is light and mellow fill the hole level with the ground. If heavy, or of clay that is apt to get hard, cover only two inches to begin with and after plants are up fill in the dirt gradually around them, always with care that the tops are not covered. Sometimes several plants will come up from one tuber. Select the strongest one or two at the most, and cut off all the rest at or a little below the ground. Never allow more than two stalks to the hill—one is better.

CULTIVATION—

Cultivation should begin soon after planting is completed. Keep the soil loose between the plants, deep at first. Cultivate, hoe or rake the surface and keep it fine and mellow so as to retain moisture, and also to prevent weeds from getting a start. Never plant or cultivate when soil is too wet to work well and do not plant your Dahlias under or near large trees or shrubs. Like most flowers they love air and sunshine. Except in extremely long dry spells no watering will be needed until plants are in bud, but always keep soil well stirred near to and between the plants to keep a crust from forming. As soon as the plants are tall enough, tie them securely to the stakes, using strips of muslin or soft twine that will not cut stems when swayed by winds. If you wish a bushy plant with a large number of flowers, pinch out the top when the plant has four to six pairs of leaves. A shoot will come out of each leaf from the main stem; thus if you pinch out the top to four sets of leaves you will have eight stalks to the plant. The center or terminal bud only should be left to develop. Each side bud should be pinched off as soon as large enough to get hold of or about the size of a garden pea.

If long stems are wanted pinch off each pair of side shoots down the stem to the lowest set or two according to growth or habits of each individual variety. In this way you can regulate the number of flowers wanted on each plant as well as length of stems desired. Naturally the fewer the flowers grown on a plant the larger their size will be. If Dahlias are wanted just for a nice showing in the garden, the largest number of flowers the better—then just pinch out the top when the plant has four to six pair of leaves, and after that let it grow as it will and it will be just covered with blooms.

When the buds begin to develop, give your plants a liberal top-dressing of a good fertilizer. If a 4-16-8 is not available, steamed bonemeal with say 20% muriate of potash added, well mixed and well scattered over the ground, but not too close to the plants, will do. Rake lightly so as to mix this fertilizer well with the top soil. From this time on deep cultivation is harmful and only very shallow stirring of the top soil should be practiced. The best method is to cover the ground heavily with a good mulch to keep the moisture from evaporating. Most anything will do for this covering. Manure is best, but straw, leaves, grass clippings, etc. will do nicely. From this time on water your Dahlias frequently. Don’t let them suffer from thirst in dry, hot weather.
DIGGING AND STORING—

The Dahlia is a very tender plant and is generally killed by the first frost. As soon as the plants have died it is best to take up the tubers within two or three days. Cut off the stalks close to the ground. Loosen the ground in a circle around the plant with a spading fork but keep far enough away from the plant so as not to injure the tubers. Work around the plant in a circle, prying the clump loose gradually, thus preventing the necks of the tubers from being strained or broken. When the clump is lifted leave it for two or three hours in the wind and sun to dry off the earth that adheres to it. Then pack away in wooden boxes, top side down. Have boxes heavily lined inside with newspaper to exclude air circulation. Store in a basement away from the furnace, in a temperature of between forty and fifty degrees. In the spring divide clump so as to have a sprout to each tuber. Never plant a whole clump as it would make too many plants to a hill, and only small inferior flowers and stems will result. Your Dahlias will respond to good treatment, and reward you most liberally with beautiful flowers in great abundance.

Convinced of "Anderson Quality!"

In our introduction in the fore part of this book, we said that we found rare pleasure in our work of growing Gladiolus for sale. One of the most enjoyable features in our entire business is the receiving of the many, many letters coming to us which tell of the joy and satisfaction our bulbs have given.

As we read these expressions of good will, we feel that they are a full compensation for the efforts we are always making to give our friends the satisfaction they are entitled to have.

We would like to publish every one of them so that you could enjoy them with us, but a lack of space forbids. We do, however, offer these as convincing proof that we are not over-stating our claims for Quality Bulbs, and that our care and methods of merchandising are appreciated and therefore are worth while:

Mr. A. J. Anderson,
Dear Mr. Anderson:
The bulbs I purchased from you this spring have given a very good account of themselves. I have been more than pleased with all of them.
The named varieties are all true to description and the De Luxe Mixture were a pleasant surprise. No two alike and all such wonderful flowers.
In a separate container I am sending you a part of a spike of one that you included in the De Luxe mixture. I am sending you this with the hopes that you can advise me the name of the variety. My friends and neighbors all went wild over it and they all would like to know its name so they can order some next spring. I myself will want a dozen or so.
Very sincerely,

G. E. F.
Renwicktown, New Zealand.

Dear Sir:
The bulbs were delivered to me today. Exactly one month from the day of posting. They are in good order. Just as good as if they were grown in my own garden, which is the highest praise I can give to any bulbs. They are certainly better than bulbs bought this season in New Zealand.

If the quality is good, what shall I say about the quantity? You have sent double the value and also there is a bulb of . . . . . . . . . . . . I would have considered myself fortunate to have received a bulblet. I am delighted. It will be grown with interest, and I will let you know the results.

With many thanks,
Yours faithfully,

Dear Sir:
Kindly send me your "Trade List" of Glads, as the bulbs I received from you last year were the finest that I got from anyone. I want to get some more this spring, and wish to order early.

Yours very truly,

Dear Friend:
I received the bulbs today, and very much pleased with them. I certainly do thank you for the "gratis" bulbs; they are all very fine. I wish I lived nearer your farm, as I would love to go through a large gladiolus field and select the new bulbs I get every year. If I am living next fall you will hear from me again. I always get 25 bulbs of a kind and maybe you can help me select some new ones. I want about the same number I bought this year. Thanks very much for the fine bulbs.

I beg to remain,
Your friend,

A. J. Anderson, My dear Sir:
I received my shipment of bulbs a couple of days ago, and I was very much pleased with the quality of the bulbs and your courtesy in filling the order so promptly.

We have been having very severe weather this month, but I do not believe any of the bulbs were frozen; at least, they do not show any signs of it yet, and I want to thank you for packing them so carefully.

I was also very much pleased with the generous count given, and I shall certainly send further orders for spring delivery.

Very truly yours,
C. L. H.

A. J. Anderson, Dear Sir:
I feel incapable of adequately thanking you for your quixotic generosity in dealing with my order. The bulbs arrived in grand condition, thanks to the very efficient packing. Your claim to grow real bulbs rests on very solid foundations if the ones I received are typical of your stock. I think, Mr. Anderson, that the Glad Lover in you is vastly paramount to your desire to make money.

Trusting that you will have record blooms and sales this season. I am, sir,
Yours very gratefully,
G. T. T.
